A JOINT MESSAGE

FROM OUR PRESIDENT AND CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER
AND THE CHAIRMAN OF OUR BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Dear Friend of CMMB,

Hope rising from the rubble. Growth in spite of a still-recovering economy. Smiles where once there was worry. Perseverance against formidable odds. CMMB performs good works that bring health and healing to people in need around the world, driven by our faith and mission.

In reporting to you about our performance in 2010, we can emphatically state that our faith-based work has brought about positive results in countless ways. In our 98th year of service, it has led us to achieve many remarkable things.

As a faith-based organization whose mission is inspired by the healing ministry of Jesus, we are guided by a commitment to the belief that health care is a basic human right. Our good works stem from that commitment. Our employees, our partners, our volunteers all embrace and believe in CMMB's vision of a world where quality healthcare is available to all.

Hope rising from the rubble: We saw this daily in Haiti, where CMMB staff put their personal family tragedies aside and were on the scene in minutes after the massive earthquake of January. Their efforts helped tens of thousands to bear the terrible burdens of the disaster and move ahead with their lives.

Growth in spite of a still-recovering economy: The effect of our faith-based work received validation in the loyalty of our donors, whose gifts reflect an increase in private giving of 39% over 2009.

Smiles where once there was worry: We were able to see this first hand on a Board of Directors trip to Kenya, when we observed CMMB's HIV/AIDS programs in the Mathare slums of Nairobi. Those smiles were driven by the fact that available treatment gave them hope.

Perseverance against formidable odds: Because of their faith and belief that health care should be accessible to all, in 24 countries around the world CMMB volunteers worked with limited supplies and in under-equipped clinics and hospitals to train and to heal.

With every Annual Report, we take this opportunity to thank you for your support of CMMB. We could never do our work without your faith in us. In FY2010, your unwavering belief in our work led to milestones that were extraordinary.

Please take the time to look through this Annual Report and read about the work that your faith in us has achieved. Your continued loyalty and endorsement of our mission is most sincerely appreciated.

Thank you,

John F. Galbraith

FAITH WORKS

for 538,764 women and men that were helped via CMMB's maternal and child health, neglected tropical diseases and HIV/AIDS programs. CMMB staff and partners can be found working faithfully in these programs in Haiti, Honduras, India, Kenya, Peru, South Africa, South Sudan, Uganda, and Zambia. In addition, CMMB's legacy programs, in operation for nearly a century, provide support for this work through the donation of medicines and medical supplies and the placement of volunteers. Here is what we have been doing:

HIV AND AIDS

For over a decade, CMMB has been a leader among faith-based organizations in the field of HIV/AIDS care, treatment, and support. Through our work as part of the U.S. government-funded AIDSRelief consortium, we provided life-saving antiretroviral treatment to nearly 47,000 Kenyans in 2010, and ensured continuity of care for the HIV-affected pediatric population in Haiti. This year in Kenya, South Sudan, and Haiti, CMMB's mentors helped more than 24,000 people living with HIV/AIDS adhere to their medical treatment and combat stigma within their families and communities.

CMMB strives to provide innovative programs to prevent HIV infection across all age groups and genders. We significantly reduced pediatric HIV infections in 2010 by providing HIV testing and services to prevent the transmission of HIV from pregnant mothers to their unborn and newborn children to nearly 60,000 women in Haiti, Kenya, and South Sudan. We seek to engage men in the promotion of healthy behaviors, such as reducing their number of sexual partners, living positively, and participating in their family's healthcare. Bolstered by strong support from the Ministries of Health in Kenya, Uganda, and Zambia, CMMB trained medical professionals to perform more than 15,000 safe male circumcisions, which have been shown to reduce the risk of HIV infection.

For over a decade, CMMB has been a leader among faith-based organizations in the field of HIV/AIDS care, treatment, and support.

MATERNAL AND CHILD HEALTH

CMMB embraces the research that demonstrates that women are the key to sustaining healthy families and achieving positive health outcomes. We work with local partners to provide a woman- and girl-centered approach to health, with men as key supporters and advocates. Our primary healthcare programs provide families with services such as health education for expectant mothers and the provision of oral rehydration solution and vitamin A serum. In 2010, community health workers made more than 18,000 home visits to families participating in these programs. In South Africa, we addressed food scarcity and nutrition among orphans and vulnerable children by providing meals and after-school care to 300 children. CMMB's malaria prevention programs promote the use of insecticide-treated nets, train healthcare workers, and supply medicines to reduce disease and death from malaria, especially in pregnant women and young children. This year, CMMB provided anti-malarial medication to nearly 7,000 expectant mothers to reduce the risk of a complicated pregnancy, low birth-weight, and anemia in their children.

Women are the key to sustaining healthy families and achieving positive health outcomes.

NEGLECTED TROPICAL DISEASES AND OTHER COUNTRY-SPECIFIC PRIORITIES

CMMB's founder, Dr. Paluel Flagg, began his work ministering to those suffering from leprosy. CMMB's commitment to the treatment of neglected tropical diseases began then, nearly 100 years ago. Since 2008, CMMB has been working in high-prevalence leprosy areas in India and Zambia, strengthening the capacity of local health facilities to diagnose, treat, and care for leprosy patients. In 2010, CMMB assisted in the training of nearly 500 community health workers and healthcare professionals.

In Haiti, CMMB has resumed pre-earthquake initiatives and introduced new programs aimed at the long-term recovery of Haitians affected by the disaster. An important area of focus for CMMB is physical rehabilitation for amputees. CMMB is a founding member of the Haitian Amputee Coalition, which has helped more than 700 people who have lost their limbs receive prostheses and physical therapy, renewing their hope for a better life. CMMB has also been working to reduce the impact of the cholera epidemic by providing oral rehydration solution and antibiotics to support our programs and training community health workers expressly to work on cholera prevention and treatment.

Early in its history, CMMB ministered to lepers.

CMMB's commitment to the treatment of neglected tropical diseases began nearly 100 years ago.

HEALTH SYSTEMS STRENGTHENING

CMMB's work is guided by international health realities. As we focus on HIV/AIDS, malaria, maternal and child health, neglected tropical disease, and other country-specific priorities, our objective is to develop sustainable local capacity to address major healthcare needs and build strong systems. We are always asking ourselves: "Will this activity be sustainable without CMMB?" We accomplish this through the design and implementation of high-quality, evidence-based programs, directed by the following six goals:

1. INCREASE ACCESS TO HEALTH SERVICES THAT IMPROVE QUALITY OF LIFE AND REDUCE PREVENTABLE DEATHS.

In 2010, CMMB counseled and tested 119,087 individuals for HIV, reached 146,915 with HIV prevention messages, provided preventative antiretroviral treatment to 3,725 expectant mothers, and cared for 110,362 people living with HIV/AIDS. CMMB's maternal and child health programs provided 16,273 young children and 79,959 pregnant women with primary healthcare services.

2. STRENGTHEN HUMAN RESOURCES FOR HEALTH.

CMMB is working to bolster the global health workforce by placing medical professionals where their expertise is greatly needed. In 2010, CMMB helped send 1,663 medical volunteers to 24 countries, where they provided over $10 million in donated services. Through local partnerships, CMMB promoted the training of trainers and motivated health workers to serve in their home countries. For example, CMMB employees in Kenya, Uganda, Zambia, and South Africa have worked together to train medical professionals in their home countries on safe male circumcision protocols. In total, CMMB trained 1,279 medical professionals and community health workers in 2010.

3. BUILD SUPPLY CHAIN CAPACITY THAT WILL INCREASE GLOBAL ACCESS TO LIFESAVING MEDICATIONS AND TECHNOLOGIES.

CMMB collaborates closely with its partners to develop efficient and effective supply chains for the provision and delivery of medicines and medical supplies. Over the last decade, CMMB has provided over $1 billion of donated medicines and medical supplies to more than 600 local partners in 100 countries. Because of its reputation for strong leadership in supply chain management and its close relationship with its consignees, drug manufacturer Merck & Co., Inc. has selected CMMB to participate in a vaccination program to prevent cancer valued at more than $23 million in Honduras and Ghana.

4. DEVELOP STRONG FINANCIAL SYSTEMS IN HEALTHCARE FACILITIES.

CMMB is helping many hospitals and clinics in Kenya go paperless with integrated and computerized CMMB Health Management Information Systems (HMIS). These systems help facilities bill patients, track revenue, and build programs that aim to report to the U.S. government and other donors by public health outcomes. This is known as performance-based financing, and CMMB is assisting in its expansion to several countries, in addition to Kenya.

5. SUPPORT PROGRAM MONITORING SYSTEMS AND KEY RESEARCH THAT ENSURE QUALITY PROGRAMMING AND ADOPTION OF BEST PRACTICES IN GLOBAL HEALTHCARE.

CMMB's Monitoring & Evaluation team works with partners to develop reporting procedures that ensure appropriate use of resources and create lasting change. The team routinely evaluates CMMB's programs and shares lessons learned that could apply to broader health networks both regionally and globally. CMMB is accountable to its beneficiaries to provide quality healthcare services, therefore CMMB engages community-based organizations, associations of people living with HIV/AIDS, and mothers' clubs in the review of program progress and future planning.

6. INCREASE THE ABILITY OF LOCAL LEADERSHIP TO EFFECTIVELY DESIGN AND MANAGE PROGRAMS.

CMMB's country directors and key staff members serve on technical advisory boards and work closely with local Ministries of Health to promote the needs of those we serve around the world. CMMB's program data and evaluations empower community-based organizations, faith-based organizations, and advocacy groups to work with governing authorities to set health priorities. CMMB also helps identify the high-impact and low-cost interventions required to mitigate disease and inequities in health services delivery.

Over the last decade, CMMB has provided more than $1 billion in support to millions of those in need in more than 100 countries through its HIV/AIDS, child survival, tropical diseases, donated medicines, and volunteer programs. Here are some of our activities in 2010.

1. Haiti: After the earthquake struck on January 12, 2010, CMMB began providing emergency relief almost immediately. With more than $49 million raised in cash and medical donations and 95 percent delivered to the Haitian people, CMMB resumed pre-earthquake initiatives and introduced new programs aimed at the long-term recovery of Haitians affected by the disaster including supplying medicines to fight the Cholera epidemic, helping supply prostheses to those in need of limbs and providing psycho-social support to children affected by the quake.

- 2. Peru: One of CMMB's newest programs, Unidos Contra la Mortalidad Infantil (United Against Infant Mortality) aims to decrease morbidity and mortality in children under five years of age in three key regions of Peru and is the result of a partnership with Bon Secours Health System, CHRISTUS Health, and Caritas del Peru.
- 3. Armenia: Healing Help sent 45 shipments of medical supplies worth $5,074,832.
- 4. West Bank: Healing Help sent medicines and medical supplies valued at $404,737.

5. South Sudan: ANISA, meaning “together” in Zande, aims to reduce the incidence of new HIV infections and improve care and support to people living with HIV/AIDS. The program established Voluntary Counseling and Testing (VCT) centers throughout three counties in Western Equatoria State where CMMB trains social and community health workers to teach prevention techniques and reduce stigma and discrimination against people living with HIV/AIDS.

6. Uganda: Safe male circumcision is offered as part of the Ugandan Ministry of Health's comprehensive HIV/AIDS prevention package, which promotes primary prevention methods as well as counseling and testing. CMMB provides technical assistance, including training for surgeons, in addition to medical supplies for the program in the Apac and Gulu Districts. As males are not traditionally circumcised in Uganda, CMMB has partnered with local community-based partners, such as the Family Health Support Initiative (FAHSI) and The Organization for Developing People's Ability (TODEPA), to conduct awareness campaigns targeting district political and religious leaders.

- 7. Kenya: CMMB established one of the first prevention of mother-to-child transmission of HIV (PMTCT) clinics in North Kinangop, Rift Valley Province, Kenya. To help treat those in need, CMMB's work with the AIDSRelief consortium provided free antiretroviral treatment to almost 47,000 people in 2010 in addition to training community members to reach out to expectant mothers and their partners and direct them to antenatal and HIV counseling and testing services.

In pursuit of building local capacity for healthcare services, CMMB-Kenya ran the Tusaidiane program, which recruited medical and nursing school graduates to work as part of a service corps in some of the poorest hospitals within Kenya.

- 8. Zambia: Zambia Leprosy initiative — “The Final Push” — began in 2007 with a generous grant from a private donor. The program combines leprosy-reducing education and treatment programs in remote, high-prevalence regions. CMMB trains healthcare workers and community volunteers at faith-based health facilities in the identification and treatment of leprosy and provides people living with leprosy treatment and support. 70 healthcare professionals and community volunteers were trained.

Recognizing that men can positively influence actions taken by their wives, female partners and children, Men Taking Action (MTA) is a program that aggressively targets men for education on prevention of HIV/AIDS transmission. Through education, the program addresses male attitudes and practices that can prevent women from attending antenatal clinics and accessing prevention of mother-to-child transmission (PMTCT) services, including essential antiretroviral (ARV) treatment.

- 9. China: A CMMB volunteer from Garden City, Idaho works as a nurse in Beijing, where she provides care and educational programs for pregnant women and new mothers.

- 10. Philippines: CMMB sent 28 shipments of medicines and medical supplies valued at $13,563,595.
- 11. Micronesia: CMMB sent medicines and medical supplies valued at $84,639.

FAITH WORKS

for Linda and Randy Klein of Connecticut (CT)

Quest for Peace in Georgetown, Connecticut ... and Managua, Nicaragua.

Their organization began in 1987 with one focus: help the poorest of the poor in Nicaragua. They have been recipients of donated medicines and medical supplies — and encouragement for their works of faith — from CMMB since 1999.

LINDA AND RANDY'S STORY

“Our efforts have been concentrated on working with local clinics, particularly in the Barrio Schick. As we travel in these rural areas, we often refer those with no access to the Schick Clinic. The medicines provided by CMMB often mean the difference between life and death.”

Randy Klein, Connecticut Quest for Peace

CMMB delivers medicines and medical supplies to the Reparto Schick Clinic, located in one of Managua's most dangerous and impoverished barrios, through the work of CT Quest for Peace. The Reparto Schick Clinic provides much-needed healthcare to one of the poorest communities in Nicaragua, where homelessness and gang violence is rife. Many of the homeless are orphaned children who gather in makeshift homes in the local dump. They are often subjected to severe illness and violence, and without the free clinic, would not have access to any medical care. However, the Schick Clinic provides the impoverished of the barrio, such as these children, healthcare at no cost. Through the Healing Help Program, CMMB has shipped 21 donations of medicines and medical supplies valued at $7,300,653 to the Reparto Schick Clinic via the American Nicaraguan Foundation or Food for the Poor since 2006. During the year 2010 alone, CMMB donations to the Schick Clinic were valued at $232,320. The Schick Clinic then used the donated supplies to serve the impoverished community daily, in which approximately 219,000 people have gone for medicines, supplies, and services since 2006.

CMMB's aid has helped the Reparto Schick Clinic, through CT Quest for Peace, treat the impoverished of Nicaragua for chronic infection and a variety of complex injuries. With the help from our donations of medicines and medical supplies, CT Quest for Peace, in collaboration with the Tiresian Sisters, can support the free clinic in the Barrio Schick to better serve the medical needs of the community.

HEALING HELP IN 2010

Healing Help has, as one of its priorities, the provision of donations in support of our disease-specific programs. Maternal and child health, neglected tropical diseases, HIV/AIDS are just a few of the programs that are strengthened by the life-saving pharmaceuticals that are generously donated to CMMB by medical supply and pharmaceutical companies. In total, CMMB shipped 453 separate donations of medicines and medical supplies valued at over $164 million to 173 partners in 38 countries. Those donations helped increase the capacity of health-care services and make them more sustainable over time. CMMB prides itself on its collaboration with trusted, responsible and accountable partners. We are able to assess needs and respond efficiently and in a timely manner.

This competency was put to the test on January 12, 2010, when a massive earthquake struck Haiti. CMMB's extensive network of partners on the ground enabled us to identify needs all over the country. We addressed the needs of large international NGO's, small local organizations, and even those of individual patients. Because of our expertise in delivery and distribution, CMMB was able to not only identify the needs, but was able to respond immediately.

During 2010, 500.2 tons of pharmaceuticals and medical supplies, worth $46.7 million, filled 150 shipments to local and international partner organizations in Haiti. These medicines and medical supplies reached a population of more than one million. CMMB purchased and distributed 3 WHO inter-agency health kits, which provided essential drugs for 30,000 people for three months. We continue to provide medicines and medical supplies to our partners who are treating the victims from the earthquake and outbreak of cholera.

Please join CMMB in praying that the worst is over for the people of Haiti. We believe that the 'faith in action' of our donors and partners and of the Haitian people themselves will help to ensure a future where hope is not just a word, but a reality.

FACTS ABOUT CMMB'S HEALING HELP PROGRAM

In 2010, 453 total shipments valued at $164,337,439 were delivered to 173 partners in 38 countries. 153 of these shipments were sent in response to emergencies, with 120 to Haiti and the Dominican Republic for earthquake relief, 11 to El Salvador, 10 to Guatemala, 9 to the Philippines, 2 to Honduras, and 1 to Mexico. 183 of the shipments went to CMMB program countries, with 145 sent to Haiti, 23 to Honduras, 12 to Kenya, 2 to Peru, and 1 to South Africa.

by propelling them to perform works of faith and healing – three brave and stalwart CMMB volunteers in the Nuba Mountains in central Sudan. Their dedication is indicative of the work of 1,663 long- and short-term volunteers in 2010.

“I had always wanted to do some type of mission work where I could put my faith into action,” writes Dr. Tom Catena. So, he became the medical director of Mother of Mercy Hospital, the only surgical hospital in central Sudan. The demands on him as a surgeon were tremendous and he was pleased to welcome Tyler Balding, a first-year CMMB volunteer, to Mother of Mercy. Tyler was no doctor, but he was a lawyer who put his skills to work running the hospital. The CMMB team in the Nuba Mountains was completed by the addition of Laura Chenevert, a physician’s assistant, another rookie CMMB volunteer. Here is a glimpse into their life and work.

During his residency at Duke University, Dr. Tom Catena was a short-term volunteer with CMMB spending a month in Guyana then Honduras. After completing his residency in 1999, Dr. Tom decided to trade in the opportunity for a high income salary at a prestigious hospital to become a long-term volunteer in Africa. Dr. Tom preferred to work in a Catholic mission hospital because he believed this helped “provide the spiritual foundation which gives the work its meaning.”

His first 2 years as a volunteer was spent working in rural Kitui, Kenya. When his term of service was up, instead of returning to the States, Dr. Tom decided to extend his volunteer commitment and moved to Nairobi, where he spent 6 years working at St. Mary’s Hospital. At St. Mary’s Hospital he performed surgeries ranging from mastectomies to appendectomies and treated patients with common diseases such as malaria and those with rare cancers. After work hours, he would research the latest medical journals online to make sure his patients were receiving the best possible care.

Dr. Tom Catena, a Catholic Digest “Catholic Hero”, at work.

Dr. Tom moved to central Sudan in 2007 to volunteer at the Mother of Mercy Hospital, which he helped establish with Most Rev. Macram Gassis, Bishop of El Obeid Diocese. Dr. Tom saw Sudan “as a great opportunity to get involved on the ground floor of a new hospital in a country with tremendous needs.”

Along with being the medical director, Dr. Tom is also the surgeon, internalist, obstetrician, gynecologist, orthopedist and any other specialist needed in the hospital. In 2009, Dr. Tom met with CMMB’s MVP director, Richard Galentino, and discussed the need for a volunteer with administrative expertise. This would allow him to spend more time with patients and less time running the hospital.

In February 2010, Richard met Tyler Balding and thought his background would be a great fit as a hospital administrator for Mother of Mercy. Tyler was familiar with CMMB, being the great-grandson of its founder, Dr. Paluel Flagg. Timing was fortuitous: Tyler was considering the next steps in his life. Although he was a lawyer who didn't have a medical background, he had an interest in global issues and wanted an opportunity to help people in the developing world.

By April, after email correspondence with Richard and Dr. Tom, Tyler applied to MVP and anxiously waited until he was off to Sudan. It took Tyler five days to reach Mother of Mercy Hospital from New York City. Once he arrived, he quickly learned that his fear of not having anything to do or getting in the way was wrong. Even though Tyler didn't have a medical background, he grew more familiar with the medical aspects of the hospital out of necessity: "I try to learn everything I can anyway, but sometimes necessity makes you learn that much more." He enjoys the work he does because it gives him the opportunity to "be involved in something new every day. Some of it isn't pretty. I do everything from making top-level decisions to unloading cement from trucks to dressing and burying the dead."

Two months after Tyler arrived, Laura Chenevert joined the team. Laura's first experience as a medical volunteer was during a one-month program in Guatemala in 2008. It became one of the best experiences of her life, which she said "had far surpassed any of my expectations." A month later she received her Masters in Medical Science and knew that she wanted to continue using her skills as a physician's assistant in the developing world. So, in November Laura packed a few duffel bags and 50 pounds of medical supplies, and then eagerly boarded a plane to join Dr. Tom and Tyler in the Nuba Mountains of central Sudan.

Laura's goal in life is to "pursue everything whole-heartedly and continue to challenge myself and be exposed to new experiences." Since becoming a CMMB volunteer she has been achieving her goal. Life in a new country and working in a different cultural setting with limited resources has been challenging, but Laura credits her ability to be calm under pressure, flexibility and sense of humor as the characteristics that serve her well in Sudan.

Working in a hospital with over 90% capacity means that every day is busy. There are operating days and non-operating days. On non-operating days Laura joins Dr. Tom to complete rounds of all the in-patients, which typically takes about 4-5 hours. After visiting the in-patients, they move on to help the 3 out-patient clinical officers who see an average of 200 patients a day. It's not uncommon for patients to take days to arrive at the hospital only to wait until the next day to see the clinical officers or doctor. On operating days, Dr. Tom completes 6-8 surgeries a day. For most of the surgeries, Laura works as the scrub nurse as well as the first assistant. Dr. Tom believes that "our faith is what motivates us to keep pushing on with the work despite the isolation and daily frustration of working in a remote, undeveloped region with little support."

HAITI

even if it is sometimes put to the test. The devastating earthquake that shook Haiti on January 12, 2010, inspired countless works of faith among CMMB staff and volunteers. Those works continue today. We share images and facts of staff, volunteers and partners putting their faith into action:

- Through our collaborative partnerships, CMMB's Medical Volunteer Program (MVP) was able to assist in sending more than 250 medical volunteers to aid the victims of the quake. The volunteers worked in hospitals and clinics and saw an average of 300 patients a day.

volunteers

500,000 meals

- A summer camp in Jacmel was established to help children between the ages of 6-13 to recognize the trauma that exists as related to the effects of the earthquake and post earthquake situation. A group of professional psychologists, social workers, nurses, artists, educators, and trainers were involved. Activities helped the children to overcome trauma by equipping them with skills that will help them rebuild their lives.

- In 2010, $49,295,599 was raised for Haiti relief and recovery. 95% of the aid — in cash and supplies — was delivered to Haiti.
- 500.2 tons of pharmaceuticals and medical supplies, worth $46.7 million, filled 150 shipments to local and international partner organizations in Haiti. These medicines and medical supplies reach a population of over 1 million.

500 tons of supplies

300 patients a day

- 5,000 Creole patient care manuals on how to take care of amputated limbs were created and disseminated.
- Over 20,000 hygiene kits and 500,000 meals were distributed to our partners to serve those affected by the earthquake.
- More than 700 amputees have been provided with prosthetic limbs through the Haitian Amputee Coalition in which CMMB is a founding member. Rehabilitation continues.

FAITH WORKS

often when people are in great need. This could never be more true than in reference to the HIV/AIDS pandemic. CMMB has been working—since its first pilot effort in 1999—to meet the challenge of this affliction in the developing world. Our works of faith have been cited as best practices by leading international AIDS organizations, such as UNAIDS, an agency of the United Nations. CMMB's work in HIV/AIDS is highlighted below:

HIV/AIDS is the leading cause of death among women of reproductive age worldwide, as well as a main contributor to infant and child illness and death. Active participation in healthcare services by male spouses and partners should be part of the solution. CMMB's Men Taking Action program addresses male attitudes and behaviors that prevent women from attending antenatal clinics and accessing prevention of mother-to-child transmission services for HIV, including essential antiretroviral treatment. Men Taking Action empowers men to serve as positive change agents for family health, encouraging them to educate their families about HIV/AIDS and participate in voluntary counseling and testing for HIV/AIDS.

In December 2006, CMMB launched Men Taking Action with a consortium of Church Health Institutions in Zambia, in collaboration with the Churches Health Association of Zambia. The program has seen marked success in improving HIV/AIDS prevention behaviors among both men and their partners. A recent evaluation indicated that 92 percent of pregnant women in the program opted to take an HIV/AIDS test during an antenatal visit, compared to 60 percent at the start of the program. Couples HIV/AIDS testing and counseling together increased from 3 percent to 70 percent. The program has also reduced community-level HIV/AIDS stigma and positively influenced gender attitudes, leading to a reported reduction in spousal abuse among 98 percent of women surveyed.

Building on the success of the program in Zambia, CMMB began Men Taking Action – South Africa in 2008. The male-focused home-based HIV/AIDS counseling and testing program is implemented in partnership with the local Catholic diocese, using their networks to identify households and mobilize villages and communities to increase uptake of HIV/AIDS services. Diocesan men's networks are also mobilized as channels through which HIV/AIDS education, counseling, and testing is conducted. Since their inception, the Men Taking Action programs in Zambia and South Africa have tested 27,122 men and 50,273 of their partners for HIV/AIDS and linked 4,460 HIV-positive pregnant women to treatment services.

CMMB has expanded Men Taking Action to include additional health services. Leveraging the same trusted networks, the program now incorporates diabetes prevention and management and testing for tuberculosis. Lessons learned from Men Taking Action will inform future programs that focus on health behavior change communication strategies for men.

“What I learned and experienced in participating to know the HIV/AIDS status for myself and my wife has brought me close to my family. This program is wonderful as it encourages men to be more responsible for their families and to lead the fight against HIV.”

with joy when we can prevent illness and death in young children. Lack of education and access to treatment are major causes for the high morbidity and mortality rates in underserved areas of the world. CMMB and two leading U. S. healthcare networks — Bon Secours and CHRISTUS Health — have partnered with Caritas del Peru to address this challenge. Their partnership is a model for the expansion of the global ministry for U. S.-based healthcare networks.

Every year in Latin America, more than half a million children die, one-third of their deaths attributable to five preventable illnesses: respiratory infections, diarrheal diseases, malnutrition, measles, and malaria. Peru displays one of the highest maternal and child mortality rates in the entire Latin American and Caribbean region. Wide gaps in health status and access to health services persist across socioeconomic groups. Indigenous groups face the most exclusion from every sector of society. Current indicators from the Pan American Health Organization show that the infant mortality and chronic malnutrition rates are also high.

Therefore, CMMB chose Peru as the location for the Unidos Contra la Mortalidad Infantil initiative (United Against Infant Mortality), a primary healthcare program aimed at decreasing morbidity and mortality in young children. The program takes place in three key cities: Trujillo, Huancayo, and Chimbote. These communities identify infant mortality as a significant problem, and all have large populations of women of reproductive age. In order to implement a successful program with the possibility of future national scale-up, CMMB has partnered with CARITAS del Peru, the Sisters of Charity of the Incarnate Word, and the Sisters of Bon Secours.

Unidos Contra la Mortalidad Infantil seeks to strengthen the capacity of the local healthcare systems, especially primary, maternal, and antenatal services, and provide basic health education to expectant mothers and young families. Home visits and community workshops focus on teaching parents how to recognize common childhood illnesses and know when and where to seek medical care. CMMB also educates families on nutrition, including the importance of breastfeeding and providing iron-rich foods. To help families access healthy foods, CMMB assists families in breeding poultry and helps local primary schools to grow vegetable gardens for their students. CMMB works closely with the Ministry of Health in all of its work, and has helped the Ministry to develop school-based initiatives such as de-worming and hygiene promotion.

FAITH WORKS

in wondrous ways with partnerships of immense strength. In 2010, CMMB began work on a new initiative that marries its expertise in the garnering and delivery of donated medicines with the strength of the Vatican's Pontifical Council for the Pastoral Care of Health Care Workers. With this partnership, there also comes the establishment of CMMB's Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen Society.

CMMB will work with the Good Samaritan Foundation, an arm of the Pontifical Council, and together they will select a number of countries that are in great need of donated medicines and medical supplies. We will work to secure the medicines the new consignees need and oversee the delivery of the much needed items, door-to-door. Each country's Papal Nuncio will be kept apprised of our work and partner with CMMB to ensure the success of this initiative in his country.

As a result of this humanitarian effort, CMMB will be granted an annual private audience with His Holiness, Pope Benedict XVI, for members of CMMB's Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen Society. Those members are CMMB's most generous donors.

In the summer and fall of 2010, CMMB's president and chief executive officer, John Galbraith, and the head of the Pontifical Council, Archbishop Zygmunt Zimowski, worked in New York and Rome to bring this alliance to fruition. CMMB's Healing Help program brings nearly 100 years of experience, and strong relationships with both recipients, pharmaceutical and medical supply companies to this initiative. The tens of thousands of women, children and men who will benefit from health-giving and sometimes life-saving medicines.

Charles Namugera (Pontifical Council for Pastoral Assistance to Health Care Workers), Dr. Marian K. Diaz, and Sr. Carol Keehan (President and CEO of the Catholic Health Association of the USA).

FAITH WORKS

are performed by CMMB staff, with care and concern, all day, every day. Each year, however, there are employees whose work was unsurpassed in terms of effort, responsibility and results. Annually, those employees are honored. Please join all of us at CMMB in saluting 2010's CMMB Employees of the Year—one in South Sudan and one in New York City.

Alana Gooley

If you asked a CMMB staff member about Alana Gooley, two things would immediately come to mind: her wonderful spirit of helpfulness and her responsiveness in ways that are timely and correct.

Alana began working with CMMB in 2005, bringing with her more than 12 years of experience in the non-profit arena, particularly in the areas of finance and compliance. Since arriving here, Alana has worked in CMMB's U. S. and field offices to help strengthen its financial systems. Additionally, she has collaborated with her colleagues on proposals that have resulted in CMMB winning several government awards. This past year, Alana assumed a leadership role in the oversight of the technology department and was responsible for the successful launch of the agency's first Employee and Board of Directors intranet. Alana continues to work across teams, most recently, being tasked with leading a group to help develop goals and objectives for CMMB's strategic plan. CMMB honors Alana for her ongoing efforts to help ensure that CMMB is able to continue its mission throughout the world in large part due to reliable financial and technological operational systems.

Alana began her career as an external auditor with a public accounting firm, but quickly found that she drew more inspiration from working with non-profits.

The corporate world's loss is definitely CMMB's gain.

Dr. James Eyul

“My first week in South Sudan was a shock of my life...”

Dr. Eyul is currently CMMB's Project Director for the ANISA (meaning: “together” in Zande) initiative in South Sudan, an HIV Prevention and Care and Support Service project for families affected by AIDS. He serves as CMMB's country representative for Uganda as well.

Dr. Eyul's passion to serve the people of South Sudan began in June 2007 when he worked as a health advisor on an emergency health project in the Bahr el Ghazal region. “My first week in South Sudan was a shock of my life,” he recalls. “While riding on a motorcycle through the footpaths of a village, we would occasionally stop to ask for directions. Boys, girls, and teenagers came to greet us walking naked. Meetings with the local chiefs revealed that the only way their community sought protection from illness was to sacrifice a goat or chicken every new moon, otherwise, they believed that they would become sick and die.” At this time, less than two percent of children in the region had received any vaccinations. Dr. Eyul worked tirelessly with the tribal elders to train selected villagers, all of whom were illiterate, to administer vaccines. In nine months, his team had helped communities in the Jur River County of Western Bahr el Ghazal reach almost half of the children with life-saving immunizations.

After leading this successful project, Dr. Eyul joined CMMB. A decision that he says was not difficult because he felt “even better positioned to respond to the needs of the people of South Sudan.” He has brought with him to CMMB the same dedication that he showed during those months in Jur River County. Dr. Eyul successfully launched the ANISA program in a region with little infrastructure and unimaginable challenges. South Sudan exhibits some of the poorest national health indicators in the world, struggling with high rates of maternal and infant mortality, HIV/AIDS, tuberculosis, and malaria. In just one year, Dr. Eyul and the CMMB-Sudan team have analyzed the local healthcare situation, sought local support for the project, and created a compound which provides a safe working environment for all the staff. The ANISA project has exceeded all of its year-one targets, including HIV/AIDS counseling and testing more than 10,000 individuals and providing prevention services to 2,000 expectant mothers. The team is looking forward to another successful year providing healthcare services to the people of South Sudan.

Dr. Eyul shared that his “task and plan for coming years is to ensure CMMB is one of the lead NGOs supporting health development in South Sudan and as well in my home country Uganda,” where he has launched a successful pilot male circumcision program for HIV prevention on behalf of CMMB. CMMB joins the thousands of people Dr. Eyul has touched in saying thank you for his enthusiasm and commitment to serve.

Catholic Medical Mission Board (CMMB) is thankful for the generosity of its supporters. With their donations, CMMB strives to be courageous and collaborative in ways that build healthcare capacity in communities around the world.

USES OF DONATIONS

for each and every donor when they make a gift to CMMB.

In this section, all donors making gifts of $1,000 and above are listed here. This year, we surveyed our donors and asked them why they give to CMMB. It was no surprise to learn that their faith formed the basis of their gifts to CMMB. Here are a couple of their answers:

“We support CMMB not only because of its mission, but because of God’s command to love. Through our support of CMMB we feel we have an outlet for demonstrating our love for Christ by providing for God’s children — especially those in most desperate need.”

“Aside from the fact that CMMB provides excellent care to those in need with a truly Catholic perspective, the fact that you have the highest efficiency rating by Charity Navigator assures me that my money is being well spent. Thank you for your good work.”

ARCHBISHOP FULTON J. SHEEN LEADERSHIP GIVING SOCIETY

Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen provided pivotal support to Catholic Medical Mission Board (CMMB) in its formative years and served as a member of the CMMB Board of Directors from 1946 to 1976. To honor his memory, we are establishing the Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen Society to recognize those special donors who follow in his footsteps with gifts and pledges totalling more than $1,000,000. Gifts of cash and property, as well as pledges made through estate and financial planning also qualify for membership in this, our most elite recognition society. Members are invited to join CMMB on a private visit with His Holiness, Pope Benedict XVI, in Rome, with whom CMMB has partnered to provide healthcare to those in need, and who is an advocate for CMMB's work around the world.
