COVID-19

CMMB has built a strong base of trust with national governments, partner organizations, and local communities through its excellence in service delivery and its long-term commitments.

COVID-19 began to make its way into the public eye, the path of this new virus was being closely monitored and tracked by CMMB health experts. Our headquarters and in-country staff had firsthand experience in epidemic response as a result of work on HIV/AIDS beginning in the early 1990s and more recently on outbreaks of cholera and Ebola virus disease.

Our staff was on early and high alert and quickly mounted a response to the COVID-19 threat in the countries we work.

The Need

The pandemic upended life as we know it, creating new needs—such as PPE—and exasperating current problems.
